WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- The most widespread high intensity rainfall will occur through this morning in Southern California.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

- <https://alerts-v2.weather.gov/counties/CA>

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Another round of wet weather will affect the region through midweek. The main impact period will occur during the next 24 hours with light scattered showers following that period. Precipitation will largely be in the form of rain and amounts will favor the southern tier of the area including peak values between 2.5 to 3.5 inches. A breezy southerly flow will affect the area through early Tuesday before turning W and NW following the trough passage.

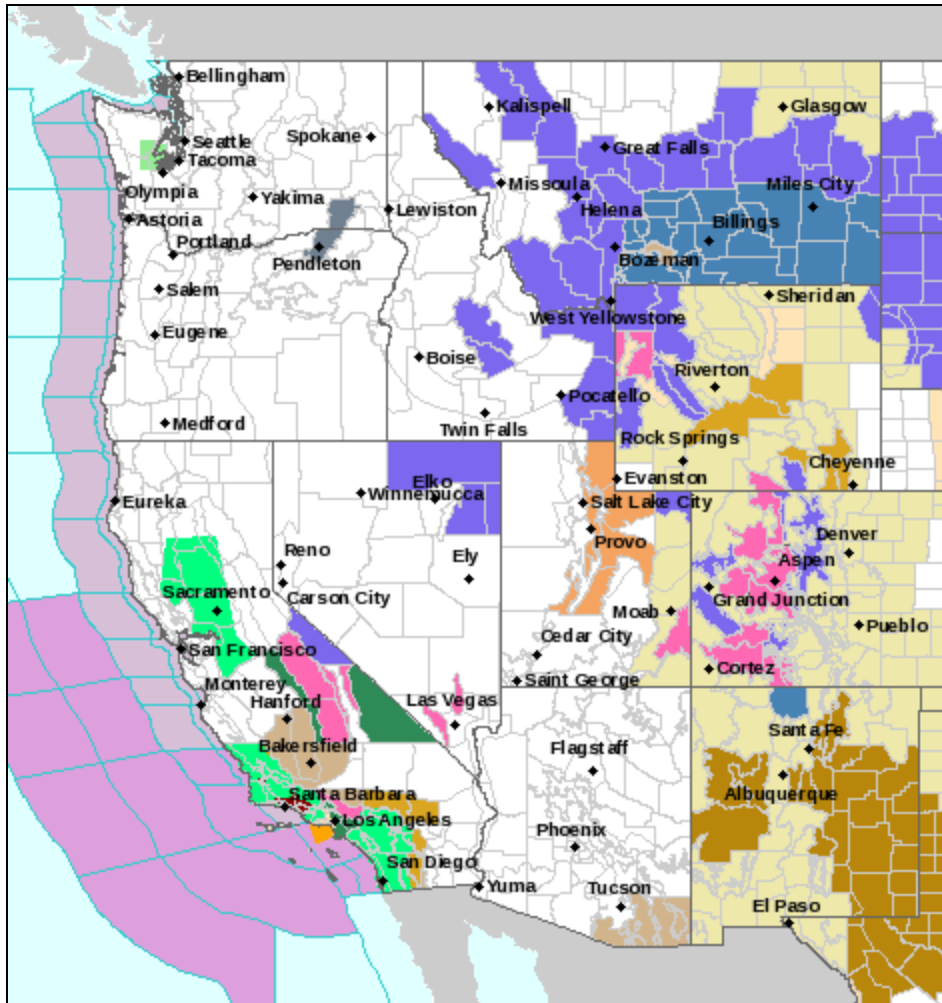

A weak Pacific wave will move across the region Thursday into Thursday night and provide light rain showers to the far north. Gustier N to NE winds will follow Friday into Friday night. A drier and warm ridge scenario is shaping up for the weekend period.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A strong Pacific storm will bring periods of rain to the area through Tuesday afternoon, with rain heavy at times through Tuesday morning. Most foothill and mountain locations will receive between 2 and 4 inches of rainfall and most coastal and valley locations will receive between 1 and 2 inches of rainfall with this storm through Tuesday afternoon. The snow level drop to around 6,000 feet Tuesday. Strong southerly winds will continue through Tuesday morning. Westerly winds of 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph will surface across the mountain ridges and desert passes Tuesday afternoon and evening. Temperatures will cool another 5 to 10 degrees Tuesday as the storm pushes inland. A ridge of high pressure will build into California from the Pacific Ocean bringing significant warming and drying to the region Wednesday through this weekend. Temperatures will be 10 to 15 degrees above normal by this weekend, with the valleys of the region reaching the low 80s. Northerly winds of 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph will surface across much of Santa Barbara County and the Grapevine Wednesday. Winds will be light across the entire area Thursday through this weekend.
